

TEACHER WORKSHOP

Feeding People, Not Corporations: Local Food and the Future of Agriculture

Come and learn about how the local food movement is keeping small and mid-sized farmers in business and strengthening local communities. We will discuss how and why this movement got started, where it is today, and why it is important to the future of agriculture.

2015 National FFA Convention & Expo

Louisville, KY

Thursday, October 29th

1:30-2:30 PM

Room: EH 4,

East Hall of the Kentucky Expo Center

The FUTURE of FOOD is LIVE & LOCAL

Who We Are

The Farm-to-Consumer Foundation (FTCF) was established as a 501(c)(3) nonprofit educational and charitable organization in 2007, in order to provide education for consumers and producers about sustainable farming and local, nutrient-dense foods. For farmers – we provide education about sustainable production practices that prioritize soil, forage, and animal health through our Biological Farming and Raw Milk Education Programs.

For consumers – we provide information about identifying foods with a high nutrient content and understanding the practices that maintain foods' nutritional qualities through our Nutrient Restoration Project.

The FTCF has been exhibiting at the National FFA Convention & Expo for 7 years. Each year, we hear from more and more FFA students and teachers who are looking for information about local and sustainable farming and food systems. In response, we have launched an FFA Student and Teacher Resources page on our website.

Please visit www.f2cfnd.org for more information!

